An account of the death of Mrs Tattersall and of the circumstances in connection with it which led to the arrest of the two physicians was giv n in last night's edition of the Stand ard, with the exception of a complete statement as to the source from which the first knowledge was secured.

The information received in Ogden resterday afternoon from Salt Lake concerning the case, was not entirely It was learned today that the investigation which led up to the autopsy on the body of Mrs. Tattersall ollowed a report from Detective C. A Smith of Salt Lake, to the effect that the mother of the girl had said: "They have murdered my daughter."

The interview which was included n the story which appeared in the Standard yesterday, was given after news of the mal-operation had been received from Salt Lake and was correct in every detail. The local physician who was present at the autopsy did not instigate the proceedings and was simply present as a witness to verify the report as to the condition the body was found in.

The two Salt Lake physicians were released on $1500 bonds

Messrs, and Messdames Peter Un-

ng, Dr. Lipscombe stated that his them, he said, a fine type of men and much interested in "first aid" work as a valuable adjunct to the two years, he said, through the efforts of the Red Cross association, first and instruction had been sent as a change of the Red Cross association had been sent as a change of the Red Cross association had been sent as a change of the Red Cross association had been sent as a change of the Red Cross association and margaret will depart for their home in San Francisco first and instruction had been given to approximately 56,000 railroad men.

During the major portion of his trip over the lines of the Union Pa-cific, he was accompanied by J. M. Guild, superintendent of the Union Pacific bureau of safety and in speaking of Mr. Guild. Dr. Lipscombe stater that in him the Union Pacific has a fine director of a splendid safety first organization. All of the division officials, too, he said, had co-operated with him to their best ability in the effort to get the railroad employer to attend the lectures and that similar co-operation was being given him at the present time by Supt. R. A. Pierce of the Ogden Union terminal.

While his work, as stated, is pri-marlly that of giving first-aid instruction, Dr. Lipscombe stated that in his ectures he places "safety first" above all other questions, believing that "no machine is fool-proof and that preven tion is better than cure."

"There were 2,000,000 accidents in in the course of his conversation; '90,000 of which are fatal and 400,-000 result in crippling the victims so that they are unable to follow their former vocation. We lead in industry and we also lead in the killing and maining of men through industrial and other accidents. For this reason, the safety first and first aid movements were instituted.

"A celebrated German surgeon once said, 'The fate of an injured man de pends on the care first given to his injury.' Accidents unfortunately do not occur usually where the services of a physician are immediately available and for this reason, the Red Cross is endeavoring in all its cours es to teach persons how to handle such cases until a physician can be secured, and also measures for the prevention of accidents." A condition which exists in the United States that Dr. Lipscombe considers highly alarming and also that could easily be changed for the better, is the lack of obedience to trespass laws. Last year 11,000 trespassers were killed in this country. against 400 in England and in his be lief, but few of these deaths were blamable to railroad employees. In England, he said, the trespass laws are rigidly enforced and in this way the percentage of deaths is kept down to a remarkably small number.
